The Touch on the Instrument. Philadelphia Record.

The plane playing of men and women has such different qualities that nearly all musicians, hearing an instrument, can tell whether a man or a woman sits before it. A young girl asserted the other day—and afterward she proved her assertion—that by her sense of hearing alone she could teil not only the male and female piano player, but the male and female violinist. arper and typewriter. She said that a man's touch on the plane is direct, sure. Arm-seems to have behind it power and depth and reserve, but seems to be a little deficient in delicacy. A woman's touch is generally gentle, delicate and weak. All er notes do not ring out clearly, for she is unable to strike them all with the masculine surety and precision; they sound vaguely. Behind her playing there seems to be no reserve of power, such as a man has. The same masculine and feminine qualities, according to this observer, maniest themselves in violin playing and in harp playing-the male performance beng powerful, the feminine one gentle, dellcate and thin. In typewriting, the young cirl claims, women are superior to men. heir light touch on the keys is the touch needed; they have greater speed than men, and greater endurance. A man bangs a typewriter hard, soon wearing out himelf and it. A woman strikes the keys ightly, and at the day's end she and her machine are almost as fresh as they were

We are apparently utterly unconsciuos of the truth that we are in constant danger of gliding innocently into the drug habit. Medical authorities tell us also that neurotic persons are apt to become victims of the drug habit, but in the main the causes for beginning of the use of sedatives are small things; mental depression or acute pain which may be of a very temporary character. The mental depression is often caused merely by indigestion. Sydney Smith says "Old friendships are destroyed by toasted cheese, and hard salted ment has led to suicide. Unpleasant feelings in the body produce corresponding sensation in the mind, and a great scene of wretched ness is sketched by a morsel of undigested or misguided food." Instead of taking healthy physical exercise to correct the pessimism which is the result of an overtaxed stomach or nervous system, the sufferer tries to ameliorate his condition by recourse to alcohol or quieting drugs, and whatever the motive in taking these things may be, the ultimate result is fatal to the system. The habit once formed, the doses must be constantly increased; the effect is so debilitating on the body that unless under the immediate influence of the drug, it is open and waiting for the attack of any acute disease. The moral effect is even worse. Reliability of character is swept idea of moral right or of truth. The dirty bills now in use are discreditable to the Nation. Frequent chemical analyses of such ment of land in several Territories to the bills have demonstrated the fact that they are loaded with bacteria, and in the interest of the public health and decency should be retired and new bills issued.

There is no law now to compel the re-demption of old bills and their reissue until worn out. Banks, as a rule, pay out the same bills until they will hardly hold together. In Europe clean bills only are issued. It is a matter of compulsion. Paper money is not used to the same extent there, but that should make no difference. It is a little more expensive for American banks to ssue only clean money, as they have to send the dirty bills to Washington for redemption, but some few banks take that is on the increase. Among the stricken in Nuevo Laredo is the American vice consul, There should be some compulsory provision on the subject. No doubt disease is often spread by bank bills. But if they were canceled and new ones issued frequently that injury would be avoided. The extra cost would not amount to much and should be a part of the regular expenses of any bank issuing such currency.
